Welding Basics 1

Welding Job Types

When you are interested in welding it is a good idea to know the types of welding job types there are and how they are used commercially. This will help you the types of skills you will need to do the work.

The challenge for most people is that there are so many welding job types that it is difficult to pick what you want to do. This is where a little research and a lot of information interviews will come in handy.

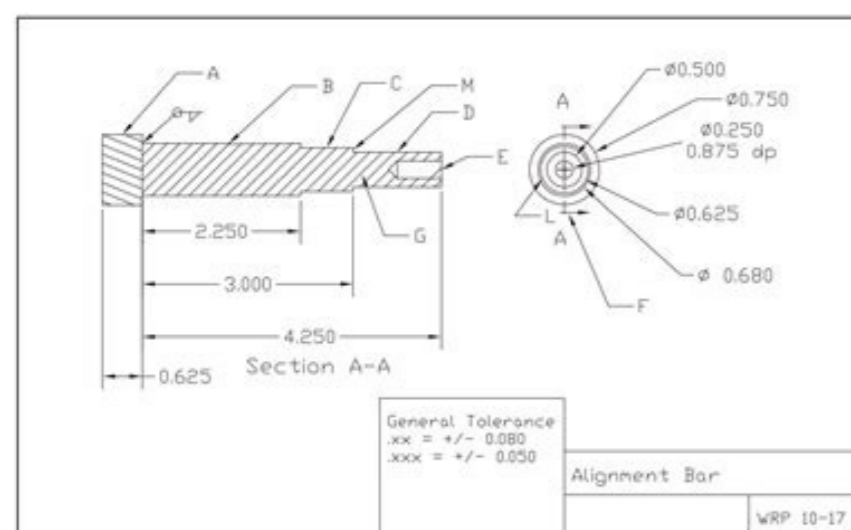

Currently any type of welder is needed in many industries. According to the Carolina Energy Solutions, welders are in high demand because of the changes that have been made in several industries. As an example, there is more demand for welders in the building of nuclear power plants and other energy sources as well as in construction and in repair work.

According to the Wall Street journal, in an article in 2006, all types of welders whether they specialize in welding, brazing or soldering are in demand because of all the construction that continues to grow at least until 2014; in fact the need for new skilled welders is said to increase but the supply hasn't met the demand.

Some of the skills needed to be a good welder and get a good job include:

- Blueprint reading - you have to be able to read a blue print very quickly and know exactly what you need to do in the job.

Use the alignment bar drawing shown below to answer the questions in Part IX of the Print Reading Activities.

- How many individual pieces are used to fabricate the alignment bar?
- List the overall length of the alignment bar.
- How deep is the hole drilled in the right end of the alignment bar?
- List the diameter of section A.
- What type of line is at F?
- What line in the top view represents line L?
- What type of line is at G?
- What type of weld is required for the assembly?
- How many holes are required for the part?
- What type of drawing is shown in the Alignment Bar drawing?
- List the length of section B plus section C.
- List the diameter of section C.
- What is the length of section D?
- What is the length of section C?
- What two views are shown in this drawing?
